About The Production

Song of Riots is the result of a four-year collaboration between Lucy Maycock, artistic director of The North Wall, and the Awake Projects ensemble, led by Christopher Sivertsen. This dynamic piece of theatre uses text, song, extraordinary physicality and the poetry of William Blake to tell a coming-of-age story of two boys.

One, a prince from a fairy tale – the only child of a King and a Queen. The other, a kid from the inner city – the only son of Polish immigrants. Two boys. Both boys need to leave home. Both are out in the night. Both are looking to find golden opportunities. When they meet, a riot breaks out.

Drawing inspiration from the London riots of 2011 and the fairytale Iron Hans, Song of Riots asks urgent questions about contemporary masculinity, exploring how boys cross the bridge from childhood to maturity, and what happens if they fail to make that journey. Who are these wild boys, running loose in our cities and on our streets? And is there a kingdom left for them to inherit?

About The Companies

Awake Projects are an award-winning ensemble of artists based in Västerås, Sweden. The company place an emphasis on making work that unites music, text, physical theatre, and circus to create electrifying theatrical performance. The North Wall and Awake Projects find important common ground in their desire to place the education of young artists at the centre of their mission, and are committed to exploring ideas and issues that are central to the lives of young people.

The North Wall Trust was created for the benefit of emerging artists across a range of disciplines and has pioneered an exciting public/private relationship that allows financial stability with artistic freedom and ambition. The Trust is based at The North Wall Arts Centre, an award-winning facility that has become a valued resource for the local and wider Oxfordshire community, offering a programme of events which places emphasis on innovative work with an approach that is determined to take risks and support new artistic directions.

This production is supported by Arts Council England, the Swedish Arts Council, Västerås City Council and the Garfield Weston Foundation.
